e. Add to the list of unusual places maintaining a file which includes classified CIA documents the Library of the University of North Carolina. At the request of NARS, a representative of the Classification Review Division (CRD) was asked to review two CIA documents from the "Ervin File" for declassification. The two documents were memoranda from former Directors Helms and Colby and concerned Watergate. Apparently the documents were given to the Senate Watergate Committee by the Agency at the time of the investigations and found their way into Senator Sam Ervin's personal papers. Following Senator Ervin's retirement, the documents were presented to the University. CRD is now engaged in researching the matter to determine if the documents were ever declassified. As more and more public figures take their "personal" papers into retirement, the chances of similar discoveries will probably increase.

f. On 30 January 1984, representatives from the Office of Logistics and General Counsel met with officials from the Department of Transportation to discuss the issuance of an exemption enabling the Agency to contract with commercial carriers for transportation of certain hazardous cargoes. The Department of Transportation response was generally positive. The Agency representatives were asked to provide a draft of the exemption for study by the Department of Transportation. The draft is now being prepared.

g. The Headquarters Engineering Branch, Real Estate and Construction Division, OL, has identified power locations for the hydraulic barricades which are to be installed on the Headquarters compound. On 9 February 1984, representatives of the Architectural Design Staff, Logistics Services Division, OL, and Delta Scientific Corporation will meet in this regard.
